Chapter Summaries

Tippie Finds a Hen

Tippie, a curious young girl, is playing in her garden when she makes an exciting discovery: a hen. She is intrigued by the bird and decides to watch it closely, wondering what it is doing in her garden. Her initial encounter sparks her interest in the natural world around her.

Watching the Hen

Tippie observes the hen's movements and sounds. She notices how the hen pecks at the ground and moves around, demonstrating typical chicken behavior. This careful observation helps Tippie understand more about the hen's habits and what it might be looking for.

A Nest of Eggs

Following the hen, Tippie discovers a hidden nest. To her delight, the nest contains several eggs. She realizes the hen is a mother-to-be, and her excitement grows as she understands the significance of her find and the potential for new life.

The Waiting Game

Tippie learns that she must be patient. She continues to visit the nest daily, watching the hen sit on her eggs. This period teaches her about the natural process of incubation and the time it takes for new life to develop, reinforcing the value of patience.

Chicks Hatch!

After a period of patient waiting, Tippie is overjoyed to find tiny, fluffy chicks emerging from the eggs. The garden is filled with the sound of peeping, and Tippie witnesses the miracle of new life firsthand, a rewarding culmination of her observations.

New Friends in the Garden

Tippie enjoys watching the mother hen care for her new chicks. She sees them exploring the garden, learning to peck and follow their mother. This brings a happy conclusion to her adventure and a new appreciation for nature and its inhabitants.
